

Bride-And-Seek

By Sabrina Lee明湖國小四年級

This is the story that has been really popular in Taiwan Taichung for about 7 years at least that's how long I have been hearing it...

Back in '75 a young couple, both 18, decided to get married right after high school. The father of the bride lived in Taiwan in a mansion and was able to afford a big wedding for them. They got married and the wedding was beautiful. After the wedding they had a big reception in an old building and everyone got pretty drunk. When there were only about 20 people left, the groom decided that they should play hide-and-seek. Everyone agreed and the groom was "It". They all went and hid and the game went on.

After about 20 minute everyone had been found except the bride. Everyone looked everywhere and tore whole place apart looking for her. After a few hours, the groom was furious, thinking the bride was playing a terrible trick. Eventually, everyone went home.

A few weeks later, the groom having placed a missing persons report, gave up looking for her. Heart broken, he up goes on with his life.

Three years later, a little old woman was cleaning the place up. She happened to be in the attic and saw an old trunk. She dusted it off, and, out of curiosity, opened it. She screamed at the top of her lungs, ran out of the building and called the police.

Apparently, the bride had decided to hide in the trunk for the game of hide-and seek. When she sat down, the lid fell, knocking her unconscious and locking her inside. She suffocated after a day or so. When the woman found her, she was rotting, her mouth was in the shape of a scream.
