There is a famous Karaoke in Taipei. There are many of circles in that Karaoke and each of the circles has their own restroom therefore there are two doors in each of circles, one is the door of restroom and the other one is exit door. The restroom is always located at the corner which opposite to the exit door, so there are two doors beside the television. The situation happened in one of the circle of the Karaoke. One day when a group of people were singing songs happily, and a waiter came in and said, “Did anyone push the service button ?” The group of people were looking at each other said no. Thirty minutes passed and another waiter came in, but this time was a different waiter, and asked, “Did anyone push the service button ?”

Again, the group of people stopped for a few seconds because this time the waiter came out from the bathroom with straight-faced not the exit one, and the group of people ran out of the circle.
